

CCNM17-CN-209:2: Human Reproduction

Aim of the course

Aim of the course: The aim of the course is to acquaint students with the position of various professions working around childbirth, some psychological aspects of perinatal life.

Content of the course

Topics of the course

- the importance of experience of delivery
- epigenetic mechanism
- stress and traumatization around birth
- international recommendation vs. Hungarian practices
- international recommendation vs. Hungarian professional education
- late effects of birth processes,
- epigenetics in human reproduction

Learning activities, learning methods

Lectures and interactive discussions

Evaluation of outcomes

Learning requirements, mode of evaluation, criteria of evaluation:

requirements

Active and constructive participation in the work of the groups, the aim of which is to implement the Family-Friendly Obstetrics Guidelines. identification of difficulties and facilitating factors, formulation of “good practices”.

criteria of evaluation:

- quality and quantity of knowledge encompassing the course
- quality of practical exercises, homework, essays

Reading list

Compulsory reading list

VARGA K., SUHAI G. (2010) Szülés és születés, Lélektanon innen és túl. 2. kiadás. Pólya Kiadó, Budapest.

VARGA, K. ANDREK, A., MOLNÁR, J. E. (szerk.) (2019) A szülés és születés minősége a perinatális tudományok megközelítésében. Medicina, Budapest.

Varga K. (2015) Communication strategies in Medical Settings. Peter Lang, Frankfurt am Main.

VARGA K. (ed.) (2011) Beyond the words. Communication and suggestion in medical practice. Nova Science Publisher, New York

Recommended reading list

- If any, it shall be specified in the course description for each semester.